Compliance with City Code Sec. 2-1120
This report complies with the City Code Sec. 2-1120(9), which directs the Inspector General to “report annually to the ethics review board on the activities of the Office of Inspector General for the preceding calendar year.” Copies of the report are to be distributed to the Mayor, City Council, the media, and the public according to the ordinances directive.
LEADERSHIP TRANSITION

On December 20, 2018, the City of New Orleans Ethics Review Board appointed Derry Harper as Inspector General. On February 26, 2018, Mr. Harper assumed his role as the head of the Office of Inspector General, where he is responsible for promoting accountability and integrity in the operations of the City government using audits, investigations, inspections and evaluations designed to detect and deter fraud, waste, and abuse.

A 1979 graduate of Vanderbilt University School of Law, Mr. Harper brings to his new role as the City of New Orleans’ government watchdog nearly 40 years of public and private sector experience as an inspector general, a state and federal prosecutor, corporate attorney, and city attorney.

From 2002 to 2013 Mr. Harper served the citizens of Florida as an inspector general for three state agencies. In 2002, the Governor appointed him Chief Inspector General responsible for coordinating the audit and investigative activities of 17 executive branch agencies and promoting accountability and integrity throughout state government. In 2006 he joined Citizens Property Insurance Corp., the state’s property and casualty insurer of last resort, as inspector general for audits and investigations. In 2007 Mr. Harper accepted the challenge of establishing an Office of Inspector General and Director of Compliance for the State University System Board of Governors, which was responsible for the state’s 11 public universities and their 300,000 students.

Mr. Harper began his professional career in 1979 as an Assistant District Attorney in Nashville, Tenn., where he was responsible for prosecuting individuals charged with violations of criminal law. In 1982 he became an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Tennessee where he prosecuted white collar fraud, including many cases investigated by inspectors general for federal agencies including Housing and Urban Development, Health and Human Services, and the Department of Transportation.

Mr. Harper is a 1976 graduate of Davidson College, where he was active in several student organizations, including the North Carolina Fellows Program, and as a member of the varsity track team. Upon graduation he became active in alumni activities and in 1992 was elected President of the Davidson College Alumni Association. Subsequently he served two terms on the College’s Board of Trustees. The father of four sons, three grandsons, and one granddaughter, Mr. Harper was born in Senatobia, Miss., and grew up in Memphis, Tenn., the place he still calls home.

Mr. Harper’s vision for the Office of Inspector General is embodied in the words “enhance public trust” and its mission to “promote accountability and integrity throughout the operations of City government.” Mr. Harper believes it is not possible to accomplish that mission for the OIG or realize that vision without earning the trust of the citizens of New Orleans by conducting all activities in adherence to the highest standards of ethical conduct. He has stated, “To the members of the Office of Inspector General, accountability is not just a word, it’s what we do every day.”

On December 20, 2017, it was indeed an honor and a privilege to be appointed Inspector General for the City of New Orleans. For the last ten years the OIG has played a critical role in the reemergence of one of America’s great cities by serving as a champion for the more efficient delivery of services for the citizens of New Orleans.

The OIG has accomplished much in the past ten years. Our activities included the issuance of over 140 reports and public letters that resulted in $97 million dollars in potential savings by detecting and preventing fraud, identifying waste and making recommendations for more efficient operations.

For example our Construction Fraud Unit, established in 2013 as a joint project with the New Orleans Aviation Board (NOAB), has been instrumental in identifying and detecting fraud during the construction of the new $897 million dollar terminal at the Louis Armstrong New Orleans International Airport. The NOAB recently extended this agreement which calls for an onsite presence of OIG staff, through the anticipated completion in 2019 of the terminal. Through this joint effort, airport management reported potential savings by detecting and preventing fraud, identifying waste and making recommendations for more efficient operations.

The OIG has accomplished much in the past ten years. Our activities included the issuance of over 140 reports and public letters that resulted in $97 million dollars in potential savings by detecting and preventing fraud, identifying waste and making recommendations for more efficient operations.

Instead, it is a time to look at who we are and where we need to be to better serve this community for the next decade. Our way forward is clear. We must look at every aspect of our operations and identify ways to improve them, consistent with our mission. Simply put, our objective shall be defined by a commitment to the pursuit of excellence.

As with every governmental entity our challenge is the effective and efficient allocation of resources. In that regard, our work plans will focus on the impact that government operations have on the public. This will by necessity require seeking feedback from the citizens and organizations that support good government and demand that it meets its obligations to provide vital services.

During the interview process for this position, I pledged to listen to what the citizens of New Orleans have to say about the role of the OIG. This includes which issues and problems they believe we should tackle first. One of my mentors in the inspector general profession liked to say, “You have to get out from behind your desk and go meet people.” Building relationships is vital to build on the success of the last ten years.

“Enhancing public trust” is our vision. To do so, the OIG must earn the trust of the citizens of New Orleans and the various governmental constituencies we serve every day. We look forward to the challenge.

Sincerely,

Derry Harper
Inspector General for the City of New Orleans
The OIG serves the citizens of New Orleans by providing increased accountability and oversight of City of New Orleans government and entities receiving funds through the City. Toward that end, the OIG prevents and detects fraud and abuse and promotes efficiency and effectiveness in the programs and operations of the City of New Orleans.

Our Mission

The OIG accomplishes its mission by collecting and analyzing data and documentary evidence used to produce audits, inspections, evaluations, and investigations. Findings and recommendations for improvement are issued in final reports sent to the responsible management officials for comment and then released to the public. The OIG refers evidence of fraud to prosecutors.

Divisions

The Investigations Division conducts both criminal and administrative investigations involving City of New Orleans employees, contractors and vendors involving City funds. The Investigation Division conducts joint investigations with our local, state, and federal partners. The Investigations Division also provides fraud awareness training for City employees and engages in other outreach with businesses and citizens. (page 5 photo)

The Audit & Review Division conducts financial audits, attestations, and performance audits of city programs and operations. Audit engagements test for appropriate internal controls and compliance with laws, regulations, or other requirements.

The Administration Staff consists of the Office Manager, General Counsel and I.T. Security Specialist. These individuals facilitate the day-to-day operations of the OIG, handling all manner of procurement, human resources, information technology, and legal matters. As a result, the success of the professional Administration Staff serves to highlight the OIG mission and drives the success of our divisions.

The Inspections & Evaluations Division works to increase the efficiency, effectiveness, transparency, and accountability of city programs, agencies, and operations. Evaluators conduct independent, objective, empirically based, and methodologically sound inspections, evaluations, and performance reviews.

About Offices of Inspector General

Offices of Inspector General are established by law at the local, state, and federal levels. Inspectors General and their offices share a consistent mandate: they are responsible for eliminating corruption, fraud, and abuse, and holding government officials accountable for efficient and cost-effective government.

Offices of Inspector General audit, inspect, evaluate, and investigate government programs and operations, reporting their findings in publicly released reports. OIG work products are judged by their timeliness, accuracy, objectivity, fairness, and usefulness; they must adhere to the highest professional standards and quality controls.

OIGs are granted substantial powers to perform these oversight duties. To maintain the public trust, Inspectors General and their staff must maintain the highest level of integrity and professionalism; they must hold themselves to the same or higher standards than other government entities and have a duty to conduct their own work in an efficient and effective manner.
Education and Experience

The OIG is committed to hiring highly qualified individuals with a diverse set of skills. OIG employees hold degrees in several areas, including: law, accounting, political science, computer science, sociology, criminology, and business.

More Than 30 Degrees

OIG employees have over 30 undergraduate and graduate degrees.

- Undergraduate Degrees
- Graduate Degrees
- Juris Doctorate

Continuing Professional Education

CPE's

OIG employees participated in over 500 hours of training in 2017.

Follow-up work leads to change in policy

After evaluators started to assess the City's implementation of recommendations from previous reports, the City made several changes to their vehicle use policy.

- Follow-up to 2012 report on risk management of the City's vehicle fleet.
- The City released 3 major revisions to their vehicle use policy 5(R).
- Added risk management component addressing driver training.
- Modeled driver safety program after a program used by the State.
- Examined driving data to identify employees with a high risk of crashing.
S&WB Employees Parking Issues

In June of 2017, the OIG received a complaint that Sewerage & Water Board (S&WB) employees were parking for free on and around St. Joseph Street by using handicapped parking placards in their personal vehicles. Vehicles bearing a handicapped parking placard are authorized for the transport of a mobility-impaired person or person with disabilities that are being operated for the transport of the mobility-impaired person or person with disabilities. The investigation identified 26 S&WB employees using unauthorized handicapped placards to park for free in metered spots around S&WB headquarters. The OIG, with the assistance of the Louisiana State Police, determined that the aforementioned 26 employees were not authorized by the Louisiana Office of Motor Vehicles to display the handicapped placards in their vehicles.

OIG investigators also observed that none of the vehicles bearing a handicapped parking placard parked in the vicinity of the S&WB main office at 625 St. Joseph Street had received a parking ticket for parking beyond the allotted three hours. Consequently, S&WB employees may have deprived the City of approximately $197,000 per year in parking meter revenue because they exceeded the three-hour free parking benefit. The OIG provided this information to the City’s Department of Public Works (DPW). DPW initiated enforcement action and Parking Enforcement Officers issued citations to vehicles for expired meters. Furthermore, DPW will assign Parking Enforcement Officers to do a monthly sweep of the area around S&WB headquarters looking for potential violations.

Theft of Brass by S&WB Employees

The OIG received information that S&WB employees were selling brass fittings to various scrap yards. These brass fittings, which were S&WB property, were intended to be used to construct residential water meters. The OIG conducted parallel but separate investigations, criminal and administrative. The criminal investigative results were provided to the Orleans Parish District Attorney’s Office. In 2017, the DA’s Office issued nine (9) arrest warrants for S&WB employees for theft of the aforementioned brass. To date, the DA’s Office has issued nineteen (19) arrest warrants for S&WB employees for theft of the aforementioned brass. The administrative investigative results were provided to the S&WB. In 2017, the S&WB terminated nine (9) employees and one (1) employee resigned in lieu of termination for the theft of the brass. To date, the S&WB has terminated nineteen (19) employees in connection with the theft of the aforementioned brass.
Airport Presence

The Construction Fraud Division continues to maintain a visible presence at the North Terminal Airport Project and build relationships with stakeholders to deter fraud. The CFD teaches newly hired construction workers about fraud at orientation sessions twice a week. It also makes unscheduled visits to the construction site and monitors camera footage of the work. Since it began working at the airport in 2013, the CFD has developed anonymous reporting options through the web, a fraud hotline, and an email address.

The CFD also takes complaints in person and maintains a secure complaint box outside its office where people can share tips or written documents.

- Handled 35 complaints or allegations of fraud, waste, or abuse about the project.
- Reviewed more than 608 invoices worth about $473 million.
- Developed a set of ethical guidelines and a fraud awareness training for companies and individuals working on the project.

Presentations and Public Outreach

The Office of Inspector General training helps the recipients recognize and identify the “red flags” common in fraud scenarios. It also provides a better understanding of the fundamental principles in deterring fraud. The training establishes an “anti-fraud” mindset and provides actual examples of what to look for and how to report it.

March 16, 2017 Institute of Internal Auditors (IIA) – 24 members attended a presentation by Deputy Inspector General for Audit, Erica Smith on the duties, responsibilities, and accomplishments of the Office of Inspector General. This event was sponsored by the New Orleans Chapter of IIA and held at the Heritage Grill in Metairie.

April 18, 2017 Institute of Internal Auditors (IIA) – 28 students from the University of New Orleans attended a presentation by Deputy AIG Erica Smith on the duties, responsibilities, and accomplishments of the Office of Inspector General. This event was sponsored by the New Orleans Chapter of IIA and held at the University of New Orleans.

October 20, 2017 Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (ACFE) – 55 members attended presentations on Public Corruption and Government Fraud by AIG Howard Schwartz and Deputy AIG Erica Smith at their 2017 Annual Fraud Conference held at the Crown Plaza in Kenner.

November 09, 2017 The Ohio Office of Inspector General – 230 Investigators, Evaluators, and Auditors attended a presentation by AIG Howard Schwartz on Public Corruption/Government Fraud at their 2017 Annual Anti-Fraud Conference held at the Ohio Department of Transportation in Columbus, Ohio.
The OIG will continue its role in 2018 of promoting responsible and effective governance, and deterring and detecting fraud, under new leadership. The Office is deploying new methods of fighting fraud, waste and abuse using technology. The office is committed to making New Orleans a better place in its Tricentennial year.

2018 Projects

New Orleans at 300
As New Orleans celebrates its tricentennial, the OIG is celebrating its 10th anniversary as an office. The City and OIG will be working towards increased efficiency in government.

Audit Catch Basin Cleaning
The OIG is monitoring a $23 million project for the inspection, cleaning, and repair of over 15,000 catch basins. The OIG will release interim progress letters in 2018.

Traffic Camera Safety Program
The OIG will release an evaluation of the management of the City’s Traffic Camera Safety Program. This project will focus on the increase in the number of traffic enforcement cameras.

French Quarter Initiative
The OIG will meet with businesses in the French Quarter to conduct a survey to discuss fraud in city government. This will be the fifth year in which these surveys have been conducted.

OIG Peer Review
The Association of Inspectors General (AIG) will conduct an independent assessment of the OIG. The 2018 review will ensure that the office meets the principals and standards set forth by the AIG.

Looking Ahead

Sewerage and Water Board
The OIG will examine different aspects of the S&W to help the agency operate more effectively. Future projects will look for wasteful and inefficient practices.

Procurement Monitoring
The OIG will continue to monitor City procurements. This includes reviewing documents related to high-value or high-risk contracts and observing vendor selection processes.

Fraud Training and Education
The OIG is able to train City employees to recognize and identify “red flags” common in fraud scenarios. This training can also provide an understanding of fundamental principles in deterring fraud.

New Administration
As a new Mayor and City Council are seated, the OIG plans to encourage them to continue improving effectiveness and efficiency at City Hall and outside agencies.
